INTRODUCTION

This is a guide to the Edward P. Taylor Research Library’s resources related to the Art Gallery of Ontario’s collections of First Nations and Inuit art. It is intended as a point of departure for those researching the AGO’s collections of First Nations and Inuit art, and includes relevant books, pamphlets, and periodicals in the library’s collection. In addition to bibliographic entries, it also includes a list of related periodicals, a brief guide to online resources, and a list of common subject headings. Subject headings are used to search the online library catalogue, and may be entered in the “Subject Headings Alphabetical” field.

Please note that while library resources have been divided into First Nations- and Inuit-related material, some texts refer to both. In these cases, resources are listed under “Library Resources – First Nations Art.”

Artist monographs have not been included in this guide, and may be found by entering the artist name in either the “Artist/Author Keyword” or “Subject Headings Alphabetical” field of the online library catalogue.

As always, older texts should be consulted critically: methodological approaches to both First Nations and Inuit scholarship in the latter-half of the twentieth century have changed drastically. Similarly, nomenclature has changed since the publication of many of the resources listed here. Consult the Department of Indian and Northern Affairs website for an authoritative and current listing of First Nations and Inuit names (see “Online Resources” below).
